

Locum Training Course

EMIS is the leading IT supplier in the primary healthcare market, covering approximately 56% of general practices in the UK. The EMIS clinical systems provide clinical, administrative and management functions to all practice staff, in support of current and future NHS strategies.

Locum GPs have always played an important role in general practice. Under the nGMS contract, GPs are required to raise the standard of patient data quality and are looking to locums to support them in this task. Training provides the essential skills a General Locum GPs needs to confidentially use an EMIS clinical system

Working with locum GP agencies EMIS has devised a training session which will ensure that delegates have foundation knowledge of using the EMIS clinical system during consultations. We are delivering the course as a series of web based training sessions delivered by one of our accredited trainers.

Web Based Training Sessions

The beauty of web based training sessions is they only require a small time investment on behalf of the delegate and can be accessed from anywhere in the world with an internet connection.

We provide four training sessions which make up our web-based locum course, delivered by one of our accredited trainers. Delegates must attend all four sessions to achieve certification.
